

together. the internet connects people, the web connects information. the web is fully distributed and the operators ensure that there is no single point of failure. systems are designed to be resilient. you can always revert back to the original file if needed, and it makes